ABOUT ANY OLD IRON

Any Old Iron is the brainchild of UK designer/stylist, Andrew Clancey and artist-entrepreneur, Christopher Melton. The brand's name draws its roots from the olden cry of the scrap-metal-collecting man with his horse and cart, as well as the Clancey family's scrap metal business founded in 1872.

"Any Old Iron," is also an Old English music-hall song which references a young man's sartorial dandyism, – a distinctively English quality, and the guiding thread present throughout Clancey's designs, his shop, and the legion of British designers featured in the boutique.

Any Old Iron made its way across the pond 5 years ago, initially opening a rock-inspired hotbed of UK fashion, the first retail store of its kind to hit Manhattan, specialized in selling rare and UK-specific women's clothing and menswear. Any Old Iron opened in New York's Lower East Side to critical acclaim, one of the first boutiques to carry this rare mix of UK-specific brands, exclusively featuring many of these labels, including Bolongaro Trevor, Vivienne Westwood, Horace, Religion, Tatty Devine, Taschen, Jeffery West, and many more.

Any Old Iron moved its store to Nashville Tennessee in 2015, to be closer to its growing celebrity clientele and fashion-forward locals.

AOI has been dressing fashion royalty for over 5 years, and its celebrity clientele includes Cher, Lady Gaga, Beyonce, Fergie, Taylor Swift, Kesha, Kasey Musgraves, Kate Bosworth, Cardi B, Dawn Richard, Evan Rachel Wood, Mark Ronson, Nicky Minaj, Rita Ora, and many more....

AOI's flagship boutique in Nashville is a favorite of locals and celebrities, and its edgy, glam-rock pieces been gracing runways across the country.
